“Whether he is working or playing ... to himself, he always appears to be doing both.” – Francoise Rene Auguste Chateaubriand

When you talk to Dr. Hoang Drouin, you quickly understand the profound gratitude and humility he has for his work. He is uncomfortable discussing achievements, which include the Fellowship Award with the Academy of General Dentistry, an accomplishment achieved by only 5 percent of North American dentists. He would rather gush about the relationships close to his heart: his family and his “extended family” of patients he has cared for long enough to watch grow up and have their own children.

“I’m so fortunate to experience such rich relationships,” says Dr. Drouin. “Being at work is a time of connection, like having coffee with friends.”

The dentist, when asked about his state-of-the-art facilities and pursuing rigorous mastership with the AGD, would rather talk about his loyal team: Robin, Traci, Kristene, and his wife, Chris, who are known for their soft hearts and gentle touch. They can’t resist calling patients just to “check up” after a procedure and sometimes show up with flowers and homemade soup. “It’s a beautiful thing to watch how these ladies all care for each other and our patients,” he says.

Patients seek out Dr. Drouin’s expertise, which includes skillfully performing the most complex restorations and rehabilitations as well as providing preventive care for the whole family. Patients share their lives and refer their friends because they cherish the man and his regard for them. With his gratitude, joy, and contagious laughter, he is truly a man at play while making a difference in his patients’ lives.
